Rebels Free Three More Americans

Makes Eight Of Total Of Fifty

HAVANA, Cuba (AP) — Three more American civilian captives of the Cuban rebels were freed Saturday and airlifted from the mountains to the U.S. naval base at Guantanamo.

The Navy identified them as Alfred F. Smith of Laconia, N.H., Harley F. Sparks of Frankfort, Ind., and Jesse G. Ford of Dillon, S.C.

The three were abducted from the United Fruit Co. sugar plantation at Guaro in Oriente province July 1.

The return of the three men brought to eight the number of hostages so far freed out of a total of 50 Americans and Canadians seized by the insurgents. Five were released last Wednesday.

The helicopter that landed the three men at Guantanamo Saturday headed back in the northerly direction from which it was first spotted.

Hopes that all the kidnap victims in rebel hands would be released en masse had been raised earlier by reports that the rebels had assembled all their captives at one point, revivifying the prisoners were reported divided in small groups and distributed in rebel hideouts.

Rear Adm. Robert B. Ellis, commander at Guantanamo base, said he had no information that any of the 30 U.S. sailors and Marines held by the rebels were expected to be brought in Saturday night.

U.S. Consul Park Wollam flew in a helicopter from the U.S. Naval Base at Guantanamo to rebel mountain hideaways again Saturday for a renewed effort to free the 43 Americans and 2 Canadians.

Last Wednesday the diplomat brought back five of the 50 kidnap victims.

Belgium Honors Herbert Hoover

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — Belgium today honors President Herbert Hoover for his role in the main conference room of the Belgian Societe Generale Bank.

He told of the days in World War I when he headed the Commission for Relief in Belgium.

Again after World War II, Hoover was given the task by President Truman to coordinate the efforts of nations to feed the hungry.

'Belgium and France were again involved in that desperate plight of the world,' Hoover said. 'But in this crisis our old Belgian, French, and American colleagues came into action again, and this time with success.'

Belgium's official thanks to Hoover, 83, was given by Premier Gaston Eyskens. The Premier told him he long would remain in the hearts of Belgians.

De Gaulle: France To Make A-Weapons

PARIS (AP) — Premier de Gaulle told Secretary of State Dulles in emphatic terms Saturday that France intends to construct atomic weapons — with or without access to American nuclear secrets.

Dulles replied that present congressional restrictions do not permit the United States to furnish France with closely guarded technical information.

The exchange was firm but friendly on both sides, a spokesman said. At the same time, he disclosed that Dulles had brought De Gaulle a cordial message from President Eisenhower expressing the hope that the Premier could visit Washington for further talks.

Eisenhower's message said in part: "I know that the American people join me in the hope that the people of France, and who guides its present destiny will pay this country a visit in the not too distant future."

"You are deeply preoccupied I realize, with pressing problems at home, but when such a trip may seem feasible and desirable to you, I would be happy if you would inform me so that we could arrange a mutually convenient date."

U.N. Observers In Lebanon Can't Reach Frontiers

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The chairman of the U.N. observer team here said Saturday his group has not been able to get to many frontier areas to determine fully whether the United Arab Republic is giving massive aid to Lebanese rebels as claimed by Lebanon.

Galo Plaza, New York-born former president of Ecuador, also told a news conference the Lebanese government has not furnished any evidence to support its charges in the U.N. Security Council of massive U.A.R. interference.

The Security Council ordered the team here. The first report from the group denied evidence of big-scale U.A.R. aid to the rebels. Plaza said, however, the report is only a progress statement and is not final.

He also said there has been no evidence to support reports of Syrian officers fighting with the rebels or that the rebels are using weapons heavier than machine guns. He said arms probably are getting into Lebanon from outside.

'Because there are no arms factories in the country,' the majority of the rebels are Lebanese, he said, and their leaders will not admit getting arms from outside the country.

Rothschild Confession Saves Foster From Electric Chair

JEFFERSON, Ga. (AP) — A mild-mannered house painter saved from the electric chair by a former policeman's confession, looked forward Saturday to a glad reunion with his wife and seven children.

It may be several days before James Fulton Foster, 40, of Greer, S.C., hurdles technicalities and goes free. The family reunion is set for Sunday in the Jackson County Jail where he has spent part of the last two years under the shadow of death.

The shadow was lifted by a 2,300-word confession signed in the South Carolina Penitentiary in Columbia Friday. It came from Charles Paul Rocky Rothschild, 34, sometime Cairo, Ill., officer now serving a five-year sentence from Spartanburg, S.C., for a burglary conspiracy.

Foster has twice been sentenced to die for the June 19, 1956, slaying of merchant Charles Drake, 60, in a robbery attempt. His last date with death—June 21—was stayed by an extraordinary new trial motion based on defense claims that Rothschild may have committed the crime.

Foster's wife, Irene, 38, first said she would visit him again in jail until he could return with her to Greer and the children. When it appeared that the legal process of releasing him will be longer than expected she decided to take the family to visit Sunday.

The children range from Joyce, 6, to Stanley, 19.

James Foster has worked in a shirt factory to support the family while her husband was in jail. "I have just been working and hoping," she said in Greer.

"I never gave up hope," she added. "When he was convicted, I didn't know what to do, but I knew he was innocent."

Defense attorneys said they hope to wipe the record clean for Foster by pressing the new trial motion and seeking a directed verdict of acquittal at a court term here Aug. 11. Attorney James Barrow said in Athens that they plan to ask Judge Carlisle Cobb there Tuesday or Wednesday to grant the new trial and release Foster on bond signed by (Continued on Page Nine)

Rescue Sixteen Italian Seamen

ADEN (AP) — Sixteen starving, exhausted Italian seamen have been rescued by a British navy ship in the Gulf of Aden after drifting for three days in a lifeboat.

Picked up Friday by the fleet auxiliary tanker Dingledeale, they said they were the crew of the 1,200-ton Australian-owned ship Gieve, which foundered in a monsoon.

They had been without food for their three days in the 16-foot lifeboat and had little water. They said they doubted they could have survived another day adrift.

Believe Soviet Will Soon Free Nine U.S. Airmen

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet government announced Saturday night that consideration has been given to U.S. requests over an Air Force plane flight into Soviet territory. The announcement strengthened belief here that the Russians may soon release the nine men who were aboard the plane.

The Soviet government published a note it said was handed to U.S. Ambassador Llewellyn Thompson Friday. The note also urged Washington to take "urgent and effective measures to prevent repetition."

The note made no direct mention of the nine airmen, detained since the plane was forced down in Soviet Armenia June 27 by Soviet jet fighters. Nor was there any reference to plans for freeing them in response to a formal U.S. request delivered last Monday.

The U.S. note asked for prompt release of the six officers and three airmen detained. It denied any violation of Soviet territory was intended. It reiterated U.S. State Department and Defense Department contentions that the plane strayed off course in bad weather.

A Soviet announcement last Saturday reported the plane, a transport, was forced down after it entered Soviet Armenia and chased for 50 miles by the fighters when it ignored signals to land. The Soviet announcement said the plane burned after landing.

The United States said the plane was en route from its base in Germany to Iran and Pakistan, by way of Cyprus.

The aircraft carrier Boxer, which picked up three survivors and one still unidentified body Friday in a sweeping search of the area, left the scene for Pearl Harbor.

Five others are missing and presumed lost. The Boxer is expected to reach Pearl Harbor Sunday.

The three survivors told Saturday how the giant plane made a good emergency landing after an engine ran wild, old to meet disaster moments later when its right wing went under the water.

The three survivors—out of nine men aboard the double-decked C-124 cargo plane—were eating steak and strawberry shortcake two hours after their rescue.

They were the plane commander, Capt. Jonathan W. Brown of Travis AFB, Calif.; the flight engineer, T. Sgt. James M. Phillips of Vacaville, Calif.; and another flight engineer, S. Sgt. James P. van Derr of San Rafael, Calif.

The three were picked up by a Marine helicopter from the Boxer, 600 miles southwest of Honolulu, after an Air Force plane had sighted them clinging to a crate in the open sea.

Navy officers interviewed them aboard the carrier and the following account from one survivor was reported:

"The trouble started with excessive backfiring of No. 3 engine. The propeller shaft came bursting through the aircraft just in front of the wing on the right side, causing complete loss of communication, power and light."

"The plane was set down on the water very nicely, and then the right wing went under, and all hell broke loose."

Traffic Death Rate Continues To Climb

12 midnight EDT — traffic 245, drowning 113, miscellaneous 63, total 421.

The nation's traffic death rate slowed Saturday night but still climbed at a near-record pace with more than a third of the long Independence Day weekend remaining.

Safety officials said they feared the highway toll would mount far faster Sunday when millions of weekend holidayers start driving homeward over clogged highways.

A rash of multiple-death crashes marked the opening of the three-day holiday Friday. Then the pattern changed somewhat.

The death rate declined slightly Saturday, and most of the fatal smashups caused one or two deaths. A major exception was an early morning head-on collision of two cars east of Junction City, Kan., that killed six persons, including three soldiers.

Ned H. Dearborn, president of the National Safety Council, said the death toll has been tragically high so far "but there still is time to do something about the remaining hours."

"If drivers will use extra restraint and caution during the remainder of the holiday period, we can avoid setting another of these all too frequent new records for traffic deaths," he said.

The N.S.C. forecast that a record high 410 traffic deaths could occur during the 78-hour period from 6 p.m. Thursday to Sunday midnight.

The record high three-day traffic toll for a Fourth of July observance was 407 deaths in 1955. The four-day Independence Day observance record of 491 was set in 1950.

The record low July Fourth three-day toll since World War II was 225 deaths in 1947.

For comparative purposes, the Associated Press made a survey of traffic fatalities during the 78-hour nonholiday period from 6 p.m. June 19 to midnight Sunday, June 22. There were 339 traffic deaths, 118 drownings, and 63 violent deaths from miscellaneous causes—and overall total of 520.

The recent Memorial Day toll set a three-day record of 371 traffic deaths for that observance.

Abandon Search For 5 Missing In Globemaster Crash At Sea

HONOLULU (AP) — The Navy gave up the search Saturday for other possible survivors of the Air Force C-124 Globemaster which plunged into the Pacific 600 miles southwest of here early Friday.

The aircraft carrier Boxer, which picked up three survivors and one still unidentified body Friday in a sweeping search of the area, left the scene for Pearl Harbor.

Five others are missing and presumed lost. The Boxer is expected to reach Pearl Harbor Sunday.

Dulles Leaves Paris After Switch In Planes

PARIS (AP) — Secretary of State Dulles left for Washington early Sunday after talks with French Premier De Gaulle and a switch in airplanes.

Dulles flew home in the personal plane of Gen. Lauris Norstad, Supreme Allied Commander in Europe, because of mechanical trouble with the plane that brought the secretary to Paris.

Dulles was seen off by French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville and other French and U.S. officials. He remarked repeatedly he was happy with the results of his meeting with De Gaulle and felt their talks were useful.

Col. Roy Parnell of Nashville, Tenn., and Sgt. William J. Malone of La Salle, Ill., discovered a gasoline leak in Dulles' plane while checking it an hour and a half before the secretary was to leave. They decided it would have to be repaired.

Survey Shows Death Rate Of Cigarette Smokers 58% Greater Than Nonsmokers

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new Public Health Service study records the death rate among persons who regularly smoked cigarettes alone as 58 per cent greater than that of nonsmokers.

Those who used tobacco in any form—not just cigarettes—are shown to have a death rate 32 per cent greater than for persons who have never smoked.

The report made public Saturday was prepared by Dr. Harold F. Dorn, chief statistician for the National Institute of Health, a part of the Health Service. It was drafted for delivery Tuesday to the Seventh International Cancer Congress in London.

Dr. Dorn summarized death rates among 198,926 holders of U.S. government life insurance policies. These persons served in the armed forces between 1917 and 1940. They were aged from 20 to 90, with the majority between 30 and 70.

His report covered 7,382 deaths during the period July 1934-December 1956. The deaths were related statistically in the report to the smoking habits of the veterans.

Of those who died, 6,293 were listed as smokers and 1,179 as non-smokers.

The main findings—that smokers had a death rate 58 per cent higher than nonsmokers and that smokers of cigarettes alone had a rate 58 per cent higher than nonsmokers—were supplemented by these other points in Dorn's report:

1. The lung cancer rate for regular smokers of cigarettes only was about 10 times the death rate for nonsmokers.

2. The death rates among regular cigarette smokers were closely related to the amount smoked. For example, death rates of persons who smoked more than 40 cigarettes a day were much higher than those of persons who smoked fewer than 10 cigarettes a day.

3. The death rate of persons who regularly smoked cigars and/or pipes was not significantly higher than that of nonsmokers. Only the heaviest users of cigar and pipe tobacco had an appreciably higher death rate from all causes than nonsmokers.

4. Nearly two thirds of the 6,293 deaths of tobacco users studied were attributed to diseases of the heart, blood vessels, and kidneys. The death rate from coronary heart disease was found to be 43 per cent greater for regular cigarette-only smokers than for nonsmokers.

5. Regular cigarette smokers who had stopped smoking cigarettes before the study began in 1954 had a lower mortality rate than those who continued to smoke. However, the rate was 20 per cent greater than that of nonsmokers.

6. Regular cigarette smokers also had greater death rates from certain respiratory diseases such as bronchitis, pleurisy and emphysema; from ulcers of the stomach and duodenum; and from cirrhosis of the liver.

Dynamite Cap In Toy Explodes, Four Tots Injured

INTERNATIONAL FALLS, Minn. (AP) — Police said Saturday they had established that an exploding dynamite cap which injured four children here Friday was in a toy gun held by one of them.

It was at first believed that the cap and a fuse had been tossed into the car where the four children sat waiting for their mother, Mrs. Harold Gartzke, who had gone to buy them candy.

Police Capt. Jim Christ said investigation showed the cap was in the barrel of a toy gun Leroy Gartzke, 10, was holding and that it apparently had exploded when Leroy picked it up with a long pin.

Leroy lost all five finger tips from his right hand. Fragments of the cap were imbedded in his eyes, hand, arm and face. His sister, Betty, 7, also suffered possible eye injuries. Both were taken to a Minneapolis hospital by ambulance.

Russia Discounts Confession Of Briton

LONDON (AP) — The Russians Saturday night held to their mystery man version of a threat to drop an A-bomb off the English coast — discounting a confession by a disgruntled former British airman that he invented a hoax.

The British Foreign Office was playing caggy, a spokesman saying: "While the matter is under investigation, it would be not appropriate for us to comment."

William Stanley Whales, 34, a jobless farmer, said he had written an A-bomb letter to Soviet Ambassador Jakob Malik, posing as an American pilot preparing to drop a bomb into the North Sea and signing it "W. Whales."

The Soviet Embassy said in an angry statement the letter received by Malik was signed only "with one letter—W." The embassy insisted the British Foreign Office was shown the original and given a photographic copy.

Whales' claims, the Russians said, "have no grounds whatsoever."

Miss Leonhard To Help Evaluate Army Course

Miss Emma Mae Leonhard, teacher of English in the Jacksonville high school, has again been asked to serve as one of three civilian educators to help evaluate some of the United States Army (USAF) courses in literature, a post in which she served two years ago.

This year Miss Leonhard will help evaluate the courses in the writings of American authors. Her previous assistance was in the courses on the writings of English authors.

This responsibility includes the examination of the text-books used, the study guides and helps, the assignments, the recommended readings, the test questions, and the final examination questions.

The Armed Forces of the United States provides extensive educational opportunities to service personnel. An individual may complete, as a part of his military training, and one or more of a wide variety of service schools. In addition, an individual service-man has an opportunity to study voluntarily a wide range of high school, college, or technical courses through the USAFI.

The first course which Miss Leonhard is evaluating is a study of American life through literature. Selections range from works of some of the first permanent settlers to contemporary writers, among whom are Franklin, Hawthorne, Emerson, Poe, Whitman, and Mark Twain. The second course emphasizes the development of types of literature and representative authors of the various periods.

Annual Lions Parade At White Hall Draws Many

WHITE HALL—A large crowd lined the route of the annual Lions Club parade on Thursday night which got underway shortly after 7 o'clock.

Massed colors of the American Legion Post No. 79, their Auxiliary, and of V.F.W. Post No. 7684 and their Auxiliary led the parade, followed by a drill team which thrilled the crowd with their precision drilling from the Scott Air Field base brought here by the Ground Observer Corps. A touchy float, the first in the parade, represented the tomb of the Unknown Soldier, made in White with the patriotic wreath of red, white and blue.

A note of sadness was injected into the parade with the passing of a convertible, with the top down, and a large wreath of flowers in silent tribute to Lester Early, a Past President of the club, who died Wednesday night, and who was to have been chairman in charge of the parade, having spent most of the day Wednesday engaged in making a float and other parade details.

Several beautiful floats were in the parade, prize winners as follows: Senior class of 1959 which carried out the "Around the World Theme" of their Junior-Senior Prom, with four members in pink formal at the float, Phyllis Westledge, Mary Hansen, Abbie Edwards and Sharon Day.

Second went to the Ground Observer Corps of the city, the float being in red, white and blue with the motto "Guard Our Country," entwined in the paper on the sides; third went to Griswold Plumbing with a rock garden, fountain, garden furniture and an enormous flower and butterfly at the end of the garden.

Fourth prize went to the Jaycees whose float had Miss Greene County and fifth to Eli Chapter of DeMolay depicting a scene in their work, Thomas Alloway kneeling at the Altar, and the group welcoming a new member.

Prizes for bicycles decorated went to Peter Green first, who represented "Purple People Eaters"; 2nd to Ross Thomas, and third to Dennis Suttles, Horses and riders' prizes went to Lucille McKain of Virden, first, Earl Hayes, second and Bruce Alexander third. The high school and grade school band under the direction of Glena Jennings was well represented, as was a band of local and country musicians.

The Jerseyville V.F.W. Corvets made a splendid appearance in their drum and bugle corps and a negro band thrilled the crowd with their marching and music. Carrollton Auxiliary Police also were in the march.

Several old type cars were in the procession. The parade disbanded at the tomb of the Unknown Soldier, where a carnival was in full swing, and free shows, concessions etc.

State Hospital Patients Tour City July 4th

The Fourth of July program for the patients at the Jacksonville State Hospital was highlighted by a new plan inaugurated this year.

Approximately 1800 patients were taken out on a bus tour in Jacksonville and the surrounding area. A fleet of 12 buses was used, and the tours started at 9:15 and 10:15 a.m., and 1:15, 2:15 and 3:15 p.m. The tour itinerary was 18 1/2 miles, and it took approximately one hour to cover. This was the first time that such a large number of patients have been taken off the hospital grounds in one day. It gave many hundreds of patients the opportunity for the first time to see the city of Jacksonville and its surrounding area. "This does much to acquaint the patients with things outside of the hospital, and does much to increase the interest of the patients in themselves and stimulates their interest in life and activities outside of the hospital," Dr. Belinson, hospital superintendent said.

About 2500 patients also enjoyed an afternoon of activity and entertainment on the hospital lawn. They were entertained two times during the afternoon by Joey Mack and his troupe from Springfield. The patients played a variety of carnival games and were rewarded with many nice gifts and prizes.

A large number of patients had the opportunity to see a good soft ball game between the Jacksonville State Hospital team and the Merkle's Hardware team of Quincy, Illinois. Band music was furnished throughout the hospital area during the afternoon.

An animated animal pig band entertained many of the patients throughout the hospital area. This attraction was furnished through the courtesy of the Midwest Order Buyers of Chapin. Refreshments consisting of soda pop, candy bars, and potato chips were provided for all the patients.

Of the good comments made by many of the patients concerning their bus ride, it is planned that year similar bus trips will be provided for the patients.

Fit Gown For Miss Illinois

Anita Ruth Olsen, Miss Illinois of 1958, stands patiently while Leone (Mrs. Chalmers Babb of Jacksonville) adjusts the original design formal, one of the many awards made when the title was decided at the Miss Illinois Pageant June 14th in Jacksonville. The lovely cameo pink Italian lace creation was made by Mrs. Babb without cost. The fabric was furnished by The Vogue Shop of Jacksonville. The gown is valued at $250. Forty-four yards of fabric were used in the dress which has 90 yards of ruffling in the ten tiered skirt. The foundation for the gown is peau de soie. After Miss Illinois' fitting in the city June 28th Mrs. Babb made arrangements for an additional accessory for the gown which Anita will wear when she goes to Atlantic City in September for the Miss America Pageant. Mr. Babb made a non-buckle hoop skirt which his wife has covered with white peau de soie and finished with a dust ruffle matching the fabric of the gown. The hoop-skirt also has a shiny new 1958 penny sewn in a seam by Mrs. Babb for 'good luck,' which all of Jacksonville wishes for Miss Illinois.

Robert Blazier, chairman of the Miss Illinois Pageant in June, and Mrs. Blazier, in charge of the contestants, will go to Waukegan July 10 for the Junior Chamber of Commerce state board meeting and present the altered gown and hoop-skirt to Miss Illinois. ISD Teachers Visit Regularly With Deaf Patients At State Teachers from the Illinois School for Deaf, who offer Volunteer Service at the Jacksonville State Hospital, recently took a group of deaf patients in their cars to Nichols Park for a picnic supper.

The teachers visit with these patients every week, coming after their day is finished during the school months.

This volunteer project is a Jacksonville State Hospital "first" in the State of Illinois. It has been in existence since October, 1954, and a description of its work should be of interest to many who are concerned with this problem. It is probable that favorable opportunities for carrying on similar work exists in other centers.

Aid Society Sponsor
The Ladies Aid Society of the Deaf of Jacksonville volunteered to sponsor the project and finance the cost of refreshments and supplies. Individual members donate their services in preparing food.

In addition to the regularly scheduled visits, these volunteers on occasion escort deaf patients to football games at the school for the deaf. During summer months at least two picnics at the park. Dumas and children will leave for Ward, Colo., for an extended visit. Attorney Dumas will return to Fort Wayne and will go to Ward later in the summer to accompany his family home.

Visits Enjoyed
The deaf patients have responded well to the program, obviously enjoying the social hour as an opportunity for communication with outsiders. A fine spirit of rapport

GOLDEN AGE FIND

Hand-pushed rail cars carry excavating material to dump near entrance to grotto.

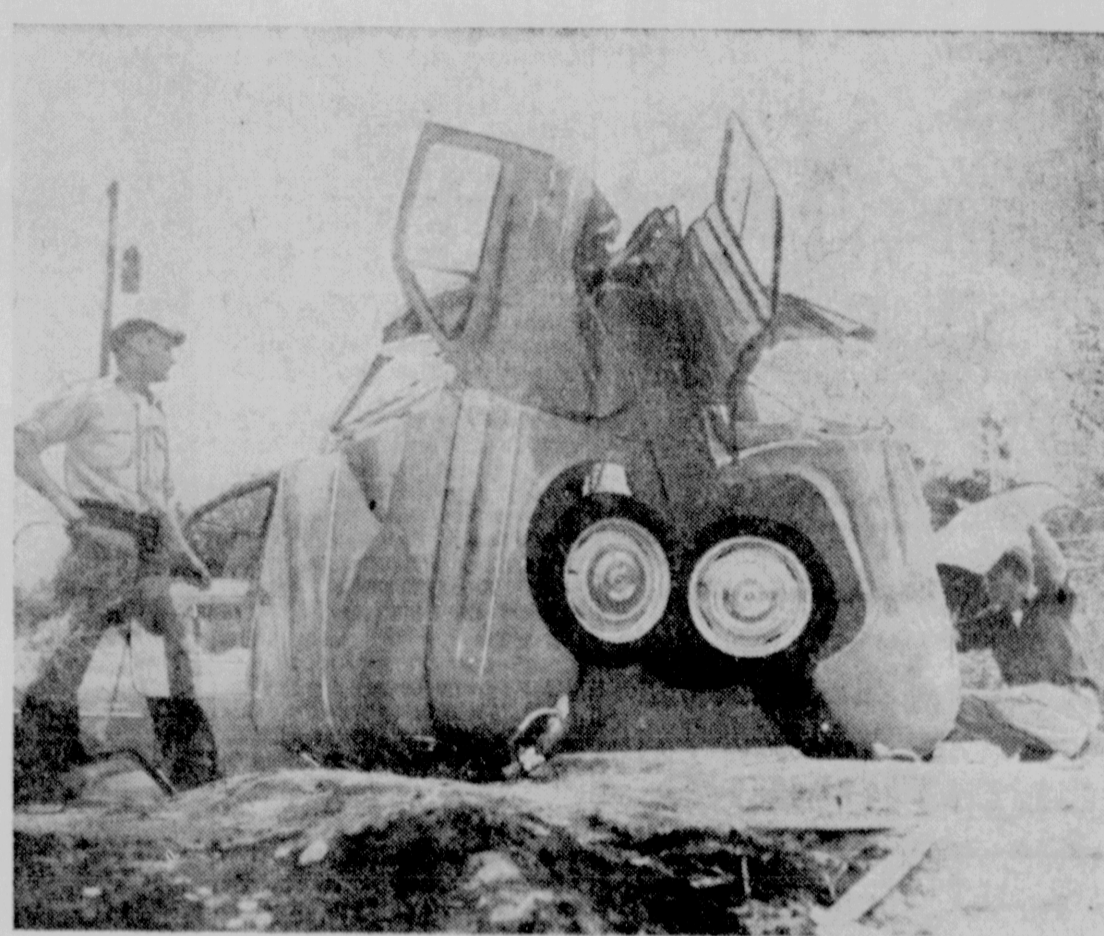

Prof. Giulio Jacopi and an assistant examine the torso of the statue of Laocoon.

HEADS, arms, feet, torsos—many of them almost complete—are being unearthed in Sperlonga, Italy, once the sumptuous resort of the second Roman Emperor Tiberius. The dramatic finds are carved in the finest pure marble and represent the Golden Age of Roman sculpture. In a natural grotto containing a thermal spring, Emperor Tiberius fashioned a pleasure resort without equal in the Roman empire. Tiberius liked the spot so much that he turned his reign over to Sejanus and abandoned himself to sensuous indulgence. The Italian government team of archeologists has come upon the "richest find" in three centuries of Roman diggings. One of the important finds was an eight-foot marble leg believed to be part of the original statue of Laocoon, which may be twenty feet high.

Althea Gibson Smashes Opponent In Finals Of Wimbledon Tennis

By TOM OCHILTREE
Associated Press Sports Writer
WIMBLEDON, England (AP)—Althea Gibson, the pride of Harlem, established herself more firmly as the queen of women's tennis Saturday by smashing Angela Mortimer of Britain 8-6, 6-2 for her second straight Wimbledon championship.

The 30-year-old Negro star teamed with Maria Bueno of Brazil to capture the women's doubles crown also but her bid for a rare Wimbledon "triple" was shattered when she and Kurt Nielsen of Denmark were beaten in mixed doubles by a pair of darkhorse Australians, Bob Howe and Lorraine Coghlan.

Nevertheless, it was Althea's day on the revered center court at Wimbledon and the crowd of 17,000, including the Duchess of Kent, gave her a standing ovation when she left the arena at the close of the long, hot day.

The Harlem miss who once had a reputation for becoming unnerved by critical spots showed her mettle by twice coming from behind to beat Miss Mortimer, a statuesque blond who can thread the line with a backcourt drive from either side.

Suffering what she called "center court jitters," Miss Gibson fell behind 0-2, 3-4 and 3-5 in the first set and had one set point against her. Eleven times in that first set a faultball was called against her and five times she served double-faults.

Mrs. Mortimer also jumped into the lead 2-0 in the second set, while the partisan British crowd cheered wildly, but Althea reversed the trend and, with a magnificent show of pluck and tennis stroking, reeled off six games in a row.

Althea and Miss Bueno defeated the all-American team of Mrs. Margaret Du Pont of Wilmington, Del., and Margaret Varner of El Paso, Tex., 6-3, 7-5, for the women's doubles championship. But in mixed doubles played in the Wimbledon twilight, Howe and Miss Coghlan defeated Althea and the big Danish Nielsen 6-3, 13-11.

Miss Gibson, although tall and sturdily built, was so near exhaustion at this stage that her shots had lost much of their original bite.

Another major surprise — the biggest of the tournament — was unfolded in the men's doubles final. Two unseeded Swedes, Sven Davidson and Ulf Schmidt, knocked off the top-seeded Australian Davis Cup pair, Ashley Cooper and Neale Fraser, 6-4, 6-4, 8-6.

Davidson and Schmidt levelled their attack at the weaker end of the Aussie axis, left-handed Fraser, and played like a pair of berserk Vikings in pulling off one of the big tennis surprises in years.

Cooper had won the men's singles title by beating Fraser in the Australian final Friday, climaxing a dreary campaign for America's once proud forces.

But on a side court, Uncle Sam's younger element gave promise of a brighter future by capturing both the junior boys and girls championships.

Earl Buchholz Jr., 17-year-old Davis Cup hopeful from St. Louis, won the boys title by crushing P. J. Lal of India 6-1, 6-3. Sally Moore of Bakersfield, Calif., captured the girls crown with a pair of triumphs.

Miss Moore first defeated Pat Bailing of Denmark 6-0, 7-5 and then took the measure of Anna Dmitrieva of Russia 6-2, 6-4. It was the first appearance at Wimbledon for the Russians.

Dees To Join Denver-Chicago Truckers Squad

DENVER (AP)—Archie Dees, who led Indiana University to the Big Ten basketball championship last winter, will join the Denver-Chicago Truckers of the National Industrial Basketball League next week.

Dees, the No. 1 draft choice of the Cincinnati Royals of the National Basketball League this year, decided to pass professional basketball at least temporarily in favor of the amateur ranks.

The 6-foot-8 native of Mount Carmel, Ill., twice was named most valuable player of the Big Ten Conference and was a Helms Foundation All-America the past season.

Dees averaged 25.5 points a game in 24 contests this season, year to rank ninth in scoring among major college performers.

Dees and Denver's other recent acquisition, George Bonafide, former Illinois star, are scheduled to arrive in Denver Tuesday or Wednesday from Chicago.

Luedde Has New Experience In Being KO'd

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Jesse Bowdry, on the road to a unanimous decision, ended his scheduled 10-round light-heavyweight fight with Jerry Luedde Friday night with a technical knockout in the eighth round.

Bowdry, a 19-year-old St. Louis product, had carried a perfect 35 points through the seventh from both judges and the referee. Luedde's card showed 30-30-29.

Being knocked out was a new experience for Luedde, 24, who now has a 23-1 record.

Bowdry went after his 23rd victim with a head-and-body attack in the first round. After the opening salvo, he settled into a body attack that showed marked effects after the sixth.

Meanwhile, Luedde's punches took effect only in the second and third when he visibly hurt his opponent. But he ran out of gas too soon.

It was Bowdry's 19th knockout during his career in which he has lost but two fights.

Luedde, of New Haven, Conn., entered the ring at 168 pounds while his opponent weighed in at 174.

Scientists Start Swapping Nuclear Test Secrets

GENEVA (AP)—Nuclear scientists of East and West began the exchange of information Saturday on heretofore secret methods of detecting distant nuclear explosions.

The exchange marked the first technical working stage of the eight-nation conference on control of a nuclear test ban.

Western scientists at the beginning of the conference expressed more interest in how much the Russians would disclose of their techniques than in the political problems likely to come up.

Despite a last-minute Russian threat to boycott the conference, the talks opened as scheduled, on July 1, and the political matters were put aside to a later stage.

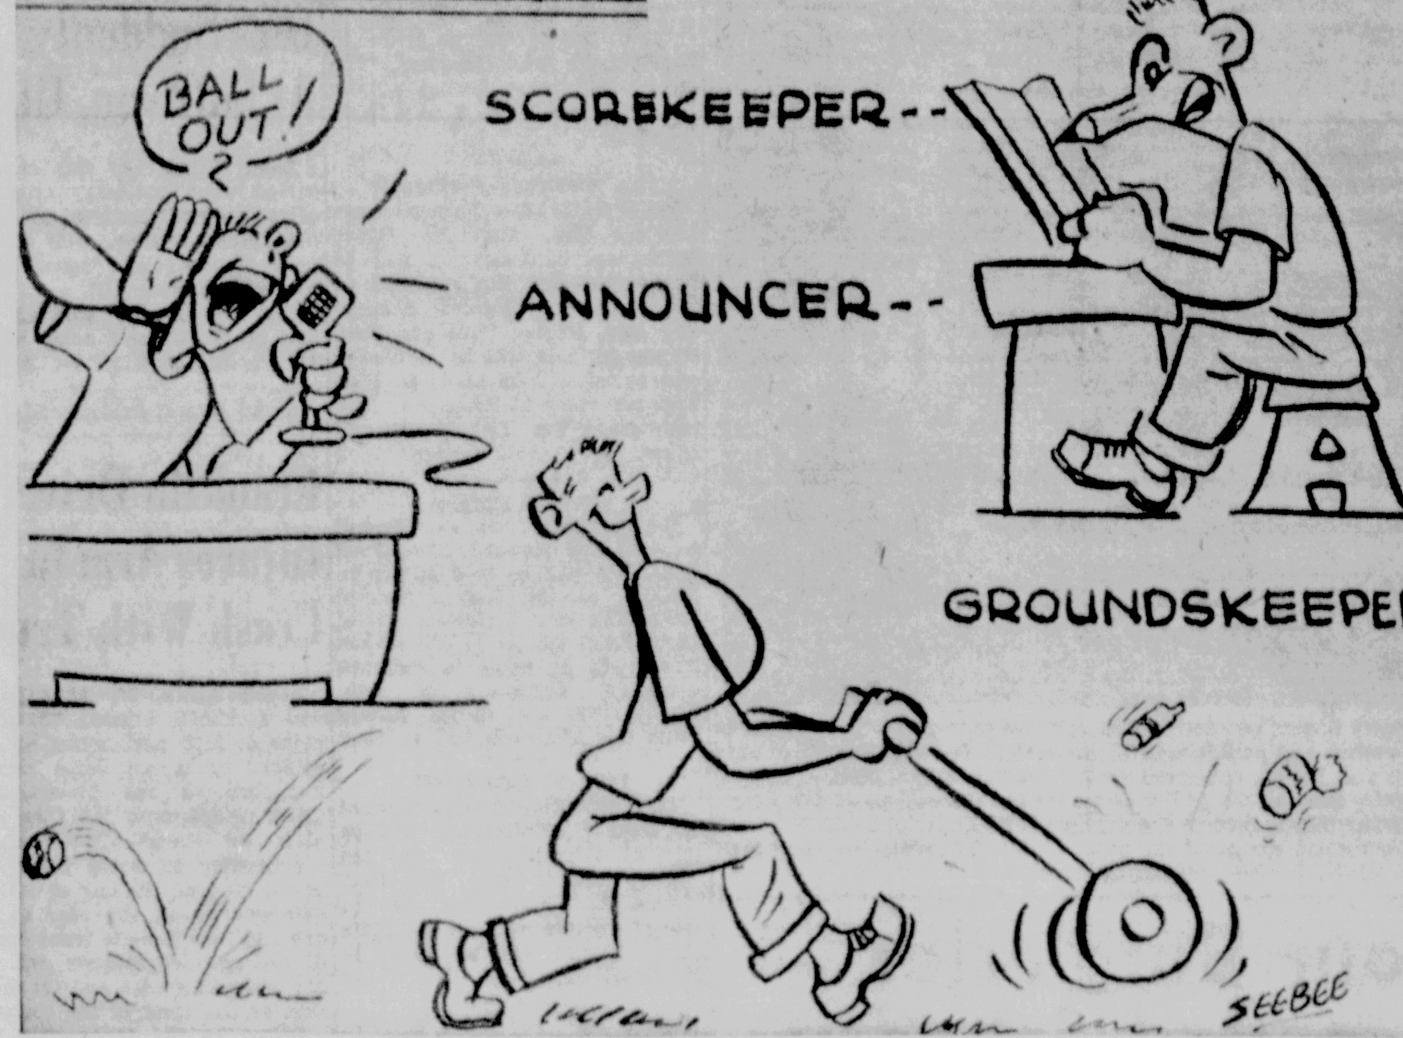

Two meetings were needed to settle procedural questions. At the end of Saturday's 2½-hour meeting, Dr. Hans Bethe, an American adviser, said both sides had submitted a detection plan that went well beyond the scope of generally known knowledge.

CLEVELAND (AP)—Mickey Vernon hit a two-run homer to spark a five-run, first-inning rally by the Cleveland Indians as they Tribe beat the Kansas City Athletics, 8-2, Saturday night in the opener of a two-game series.

Larry Doby and Rocky Colavito also hit homers for the Indians in the second inning.

Right-hander Ray Narleski gave up seven scattered hits and struck out five in winning his 10th game against five losses.

Ralph Terry, a 22-year-old right-hander, started for Kansas City, but was lifted in the first with two out and a man on first base after giving up three runs, three hits and a walk. The loss was his seventh in 12 decisions.

Vernon's blast over the right field fence, his sixth homer of the season, came with Bob Avila on first base with a leadoff walk. A double by Doby and a single by J. L. Lal of India 6-1, 6-3. Sally Moore of Bakersfield, Calif., captured the girls crown with a pair of triumphs.

Miss Moore first defeated Pat Bailing of Denmark 6-0, 7-5 and then took the measure of Anna Dmitrieva of Russia 6-2, 6-4. It was the first appearance at Wimbledon for the Russians.

MORRISTOWN, N.J. (AP)—Margaret Mathews, a lithe 21-year-old Olympian from Tennessee State, broke the American record for the broad jump and won three gold medals Saturday to take major honors in the women's national AAU track and field championships.

The 5-5½, 127-pound junior from Atlanta cleared 29 feet one inch on her final leap for her broad jump victory and earned a trip to Moscow. She later also won the 100-yard dash in 11.1 seconds and anchored Tennessee State's flashy 440-yard relay team to a meet record victory in 46.9 seconds.

Mrs. Earlene Brown, 226-pound Olympian from Los Angeles, broke meet records in the discus (132-5½) and the shot put (47-5½) and won another trip abroad.

In all 20 places on the U.S. team, which will meet the Russians in a dual meet in Moscow July 27-28, were decided by Saturday's championships on Memorial Field. The team will be announced Sunday.

In most cases the top two in each event, except the 50-yard dash and 440-yard run, will make the team.

Five championship meet records were shattered. One American record was bettered (the broad jump) and another was tied. That was in the 220-yard dash when Olympian Lucinda Williams of Tennessee State beat defending champion Isabel Daniels, a teammate, by two yards in 24.3 seconds.

Miss Mathews' jump eclipsed the mark of 19-11½ set by teammate Willie White in finishing second in the 1956 Olympics at Melbourne. Miss White, hampered by an injured left ankle, finished third with 18-11 and just missed making the team. She was edged by another Tennessee State girl, Annie Smith, who cleared 19-24.

A rhubarb developed in the 880-yard run when Lillian Green, a 17-year-old Hunter College freshman from New York, was disqualified after finishing first. The victory went to Flo McArthur of New York, who had finished second.

Mrs. Francis Kaszubski of Cleveland, the meet referee and chairman of the Women's National AAU Track and Field Committee, disqualified Miss Green because a teammate paced her for the last 230 yards by running on the inside track.

Yankees, Red Sox Play To 3-3 Tie, Call Game In 10th

NEW YORK (AP)—The Boston Red Sox and the New York Yankees played to a 3-3 tie Saturday night when the 11th inning halted play in the top of the 11th inning after the Sox scored two runs which were nullified by the curfew.

Under American League rules the score reverted back to the previous full inning and goes in the books as a tie game. All performances through the 10th inning will be replayed at a later date.

Mickey Mantle sent the game into extra innings when he led off the Yankees' half of the ninth with his 20th home run. Until then Boston's Dave Sisler had yielded only one hit—a seventh inning single by Jerry Lumpe—after the second inning.

The Sox picked up their 11th inning runs off Zack Monroe and Tom Sturdivant as manager Casey Stengel called on seven pitchers. There were two out and one strike and two balls on Gene Stebbins when the curfew bell rang.

It was the first time in American League history that a night game in Yankee Stadium was halted by the curfew. American League rules do not provide for suspended games.

Boston 011 020 000 0-3 8 0
New York 110 000 001 0-3 7 2 (10th inning tie, called curfew)

American League Favored To Win All-Star Classic

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer
BALTIMORE (AP)—Casey Stengel's American League squad, loaded with nine New York Yankees, is favored over the strong National League team in the 25th All-Star baseball game to be played Tuesday at Memorial Stadium.

Except for an occasional fleeting glimpse on television, National League players are strangers in Baltimore which has been back in the majors for only five years and never had seen an All-Star or World Series game.

Playing in friendly surroundings in a familiar park as the home club, the Americans have been made a 13 to 10 man-to-man choice. The National, however, has won six of the past eight games, whittling the American's series margin to 14-16.

They used to call the All-Star game Stengel's jinx for he had won only once in six attempts until last year. The 1957 game at St. Louis went to the Americans 6-5 with each team scoring three times in a wild ninth inning.

The silver anniversary game is sure to draw a capacity crowd of about 47,000 with 60 per cent of the gate receipts and 60 per cent of the radio-television money going to the player pension fund.

The game will be beamed on network (NBC) and radio and TV across the nation.

Game time is noon (EST). If it should be rained out they would play Tuesday at 7 p.m. (EST). If it rained again, the game could be played Wednesday morning or afternoon.

Everybody expects Manager Fred Haney of Milwaukee and Stengel of the Yankees to go with right-handed starting pitchers. The selections won't be named until Monday morning. Bob Turley of the Yankees looks like a solid bet to open for the American and either Bob Friend of Pittsburgh or Bob Purkey of Cincinnati for the Nationals.

For the first time the fans get a chance to second guess the players on the All-Star selections. Dissatisfied with the fans' vote in recent years when a Cincinnati bloc has dominated the poll, the two leagues and Commissioner Ford Frick permitted the players to name the teams. The only restriction was that you couldn't vote for a man on your own team.

Stengel and Haney are bound by the rules to start the men named and continue playing them for at least three innings unless they are injured. Once that formally is out of the way, this 25th game is likely to become another chapter of the Yankee-Brave rivalry that has so interesting last October. Haney has six Milwaukee players on his 25-man squad.

Pierce Settles Down After Shaky Start, Sox Blast Tigers, 8-1

By JOE MOOSHL
Associated Press Sports Writer
CHICAGO (AP)—Southpaw Billy Pierce settled down after a shaky first inning Saturday night and hurled the Chicago White Sox to an 8-1 victory over the Detroit Tigers before a crowd of 23,025.

Fine defensive work by the Sox in the first inning helped Pierce get out of a jam with only one Detroit player scoring. However the stylish southpaw regained his form and cruised to his eighth victory and tenth complete game of the season.

Jim Landis, continuing the hot pace he has set since the first of June, drove in three Chicago runs with a pair of singles. Landis capped a three-run rally in the second with a bases-loaded single and then singled home the first of two runs in the seventh which clinched the issue. The Sox scored three more in the eighth on Nellie Fox' two-run triple and a wild pitch by reliever Billy Hoft.

Tiger starter Frank Lary couldn't get by the second inning and was handed his seventh loss against eight victories.

Four Burglaries Reported Saturday

Four burglaries were reported to city police Saturday, three of which seemed to be the same mode of operation.

At 9 a.m. MacMurray College reported someone entered the dining hall, broke open a metal box and stole two $5 bills and some small change, then made off with a small radio and case. Three payroll checks were also missing from the box.

At 10:20 a.m. Central Baptist church reported the theft of $43.89 in an envelope plus a small radio and pocket knife. The vandals entered with the use of a large knife or "jimmie" and then tried open a desk drawer.

At 5:40 p.m. the First Baptist church reported the theft of several envelopes from a desk drawer containing money and checks totaling about $21. Entry was gained through a window and then an office window broken to get at the desk.

Later in the day a woman reported that someone took her large purse from the Public Library containing a billfold, keys and a red check book. The billfold contained between 25-30 dollars and was later found on South East St. empty.

Aerial Survey Spots Power Line Defects

A new method of inspecting high voltage lines leading into the Jacksonville area was inaugurated recently according to C. E. Senn, local manager for the Illinois Power company.

On June 23, a test aerial patrol of the power company's high voltage lines in this area proved successful and aerial patrols will be continued periodically in the future.

"Aerial patrols will round out the inspection program the company carries on to insure the Jacksonville customers a dependable supply of electric power," Mr. Senn said.

Prior to June 23, the company used foot patrols to inspect their high voltage lines leading in and out of the city. Aerial patrols were used in other parts of power company territory, but this is the first time such patrols have been undertaken in the Jacksonville area.

The observer checks conditions of cross-arms, insulators, and high voltage wires. At the end of the plane's run the pilot flies above the structures, and flies the opposite side of the line on the return trip. This gives the observer two different views of the company's equipment.

Safety emphasized
"Aerial observations will be restricted to open country areas. The planes will not fly at low altitudes over congested areas where lives could be endangered," Mr. Senn said.

Aerial patrols have proved effective means in locating cracked insulators, and wires and cross-arms that have been burned or blistered by strikes of lightning. Many of these imperfections could not be seen looking from the ground up.

"Following severe electrical wind or rain storms, aerial patrols are especially effective," Mr. Senn said. "Much of the power company's transmission system goes cross-country. To patrol the line by foot where no roads exist would be a tedious and time consuming job. However, a plane could spot a major break in a short time and radio this information to ground crews who could go directly to the cause of the trouble without wasting time."

"Aerial patrol of our transmission lines in the Jacksonville area will be a regular addition to our preventative maintenance program," Mr. Senn said.

Surviving are her foster mother, Mrs. Carrie Dodd, and foster sister, Mrs. Ida Pitchford, both of Waverly; four daughters, Mrs. R. M. Thompson and Mrs. R. J. Hill, both of Youngstown, Ohio; Mrs. C. R. Shields of Chula Vista, Calif.; Mrs. R. E. Nichols of Vandavia; two sisters, Mrs. Fred Heighmeyer of Springfield, Mrs. H. C. Egan of Brighton, Wash., and one brother, Ted Tuttle of Springfield.

The body is at the Nece Funeral Home here. Funeral services will be held in Waverly at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday, with the Rev. Robert Kater officiating. Burial will be in the Rose Lawn cemetery at Springfield.

A REPORT TO HOG FEEDERS The Facts Behind Dixie's New 2-Feed Growing-Finishing Program

by Robert F. Deibel, Jr.
President, Dixie Mills Co.
East St. Louis, Illinois

At Dixie, we believe the only value in knowledge is the use to which that knowledge is put—and that brings us to this important announcement. Recent developments in the knowledge of hog nutritional requirements clearly show that these requirements differ for pigs of different ages and sizes. Dixie has put this knowledge to use and developed an entirely new Hog Growing and Finishing Program... with new Dixie Growing and Finishing Concentrates and complete feeds.

Dixie Growing Feeds are fed from weaning until hogs weigh 125 pounds. The Finishing feeds are fed from 125 pounds to market. Research has now proved that pigs fed one concentrate or complete feed from weaning to market eat more

This Week... at Dixon Springs

Rain comes at the right time and in the right amounts for top corn yields in southern Illinois in only one out of every four to six years, reports L. E. Gard, crops research worker at the University of Illinois Dixon Springs Experiment Station.

Just as the use of adapted seed, recommended fertility treatment or good cultural practices increases corn yields, so do water supply and distribution also affect yields. When nature does not supply enough rainfall during the growing season, irrigation can be used to raise corn yields, Gard points out.

Over the past 20 years, rainfall at Dixon Springs has averaged 14-17 inches during the corn-growing season from May 15 to September 12. The ten wettest years averaged 18.27 inches, and the ten driest years averaged only 10.07 inches.

Clayton soils in the southern third of the state will release only 2 1/2 to 4 inches of water before yield reductions start. So even in five of the ten wet years, the combined total of rainfall and stored water fell two to four inches short of the 18 to 21 inches required to produce 100-bushel yields.

This deficiency was felt in late July and August. In all of the dry years the total fell four to nine inches below the amount needed for 100-bushel yields.

Last season, a typical wet year, 18.67 inches of rain fell at Dixon Springs during the corn-growing season, and yet corn yields increased up to 20 bushels with the application of four inches of additional water.

Other yield increases on irrigated plots at the Dixon Springs Station during the past three years ranged from 1 bushel on medium-fertile soils to 38 bushels on a highly fertile soil. Some of the most economical gains, from 20 to 31 bushels, were realized by adding only four inches of water—two inches at early tassels stage and two more inches ten days later.

PLYMOUTH MAN HIRED AS NEW AG INSTRUCTOR

MEREDOSIA—Loren I. Wickert of Plymouth has been hired as the agriculture teacher by the school board of Unit 11, the Meredosia-Chambersburg schools, following the resignation of Howard McPherson.

Mr. McPherson has been employed by the Christian Grain Co. He and his family are now living in the house formerly owned by Mr. and Mrs. George Delaney.

Mr. and Mrs. Marshall T. Cloyd, band and English instructors, respectively, have bought Dale Pittenger's house. The Jack Watson house has been rented by Mr. and Mrs. Phil Morris, coach and grade school teacher, respectively.

The fact of whether ambergris comes from live or dead sperm whales never has been ascertained.

FLYING CARD—This is the new five-cent airmail postal card which will be placed on first-day sale at Wichita, Kan., on July 31. The stamp printed on the card is red in color and is similar to the four-cent airmail stamp for post cards.

Steers On Test Gaining Well With Synovex

URBANA—Steers implanted with Synovex hormone material may put on cheaper gains than stillbirth-implanted steers, according to G. R. Carlisle, University of Illinois livestock extension specialist.

Experimental work with the new hormone looks promising at the Illinois and Kansas experiment stations, Carlisle says.

The Kansas station reports that although the Synovex implant costs several times as much as the stillbirth implant, gains in two of the three tests conducted were 75 cents to $1.50 per 100 pounds cheaper when Synovex was used instead of stillbirth. In the third test, stillbirth-implanted steers gained slightly more economically.

Illinois trials last year showed that Synovex-implanted steers out-gained stillbirth-implanted animals fed similarly by 40 to 49 pounds in a year's time. Tests now under way again show promise. Synovex-implanted steers are about 10 pounds heavier than similar stillbirth-implanted cattle after 140 days in the feedlot.

Illinois farm land values have increased more than farm building values.

In a current University of Illinois experiment, beef cattle on pasture receiving the same ration as cattle in drylot are out-gaining the drylot-fed cattle.

TACHY TECHNIQUE—With his Dallesque mustache emphasizing his dour look, French painter Mathieu looks over one of his paintings at a Paris exhibit. It's an example of "Tachism," which he created. He says it's a style of "action painting" wherein the artist just slaps paint around until "something develops." Mathieu's expression suggests he's awaiting developments with no great confidence.

Plant Pesticides Are Dangerous To Livestock

URBANA—Never use plant pesticides on livestock, says Dr. R. P. Link of the University of Illinois College of Veterinary Medicine.

Though the same material as is used to control plant pests may also be used in preparations designed for use on animals, the concentration and chemical formulation may be vastly different. And the difference can mean a sick animal.

Farm livestock are most commonly poisoned when the insecticides are absorbed through the skin, licked from the hair coat or eaten on treated pasture or forage. Avoid these dangers by using the insecticide according to the manufacturer's directions, says Dr. Link.

Most organic phosphate insecticides are so highly poisonous that they should not be used on livestock. However, they can be used on crops if the feed is not given to livestock until the insecticides have disappeared. This will take from a few days to three weeks.

Lindane, chlordane, methoxychlor and DDT can be safely used on domestic animals in the wettable powder form. Oil solutions, however, often cause poisoning by being absorbed through the skin.

The annual summer Illinois Purebred Sheep Breeders' Association meeting and sale will be held in the stock pavilion at Urbana on July 19.

Illinois Farmers Outlook Letter

FARMS WITH MILK COWS CUT ONE-HALF

The future of dairy farming can be visualized by studying present trends. Note these important developments:

1. In the past ten years, the number of farms with milk cows has been reduced by about one-half—and even more in some midwestern states. This reduction does not mean that half of the dairymen have been forced out of business. Rather, it reflects the fact that many farmers who formerly kept a few cows as a sideline have quit milking.

2. In the past ten years, farmers staying in the dairy business have doubled the size of their herds. Here again this increase does not mean that the farmer who had 20 cows ten years ago now has 40. But many of those who had 15 or 20 cows now have 25 or 30. This is a genuine self-help program used by many dairy farmers. The main thing that has been responsible for doubling the average size of the herd, however, is a cut in the number of farms having a few cows as a sideline.

3. Despite the increase in average herd size, the total number of milk cows has been cut 20 percent since 1945. Milk cow numbers have gone down every year except in 1951 and 1952. (In those two years the price of milk was propped at 90 percent of parity, while prices of beef cattle fell to the skids. Instead of reducing cow numbers by 2 percent a year as in other recent years, farmers added 2 percent a year.)

4. Average milk production per cow has increased about 35 percent since 1945. Increases ranged from 1 to 5 percent a year except in 1951, when there was little change. Farmers are getting more milk per cow because they are (a) upgrading their herds, (b) feeding better roughages, and (c) feeding more concentrates.

So far this year there is no apparent increase in milk production. This probably reflects the high prices for slaughter cattle which encourages close culling of dairy herds and production of beef in preference to dairying.

Some Markets Ebb
Unemployment seems to be trimming sales of fluid milk in some markets. Sales seem to be up less than population. Use of butter is about the same as in 1957. Consumption of cheese shows a fair increase, probably because of the sharp rise in prices of most meats.

Average prices received by farmers recently were about 17 cents a hundred pounds lower than the year before. This decrease equals the reduction in price support for manufacturing milk. Prices were not reduced in all markets.

The level of price support was reduced on April 1. During April and May, the government bought for price support butter and cheese representing 886 million pounds of milk. This was only about two-thirds as much as was bought a year before.

Purchases of nonfat dry milk amounted to 227 million pounds, half again as much as in the same two months of 1957. The increased purchases this year probably reflect the operation of new plants erected to produce nonfat dry milk.

Cool, Wet Days Slow Corn Growth Throughout U.S.

July 1st is a commonly accepted stock taking date for the corn crop, and this year's survey shows that the ground gained in May by earlier planting was lost in June. Continued cool, wet weather slowed down corn growth, so that not too much will be over "knee high by the Fourth of July."

June temperatures were well below normal and rainfall well above normal. Part of New York suffered a two inch snowfall in late June. Southwest Ohio had the wettest June on record. In the last week in June, DeKalb's crop reporter at Shenandoah in extreme southwestern Iowa reports weekly maximum temperatures as 75-76-78-80-85-73 with night temperatures averaging about 50 degrees.

However, cool temperatures and plentiful rainfall favor oats, hay, pasture, and canning crops. Waterman, in DeKalb County, Ill. reports 9.31 inches of rain in June and nearby canning companies report the best crop of canning peas in years. Yields of up to 8000 pounds per acre have been reported.

The crop of blue grass seed is expected to be excellent this year. Strange as it may seem, South Dakota leads in the production of this crop, harvesting of which is referred to as "stripping."

Stands of corn are reported as being thinner than usual, particularly on spring plowed ground. The dry weather which prevailed for some two or three weeks after planting caused corn to come up unevenly or not at all. The problem was not acute enough for replanting, but has caused a loss of the desired stand on as much as 20 percent of the fields in the northern half of the Corn Belt.

Agricultural chemicals help solve two of this year's acute problems. Fields too wet for cultivation can be sprayed to kill weeds, and corn lacking nitrogen can be quickly restored to vigor with liquid nitrogen, anhydrous ammonia, or some dry nitrogen compound. The farmer is becoming more and more dependent on chemicals to protect his crop investments.

William Howard Taft was the first man to serve the U.S. both as president and as chief justice of the Supreme Court.

Illinois Real Estate Taxes Hit New Peak

Illinois farm land owners will pay more than $100 million in real estate taxes for 1958, according to estimates made by C. L. Stewart, University of Illinois land economist.

Speaking before the annual summer conference of farm advisers last week, Stewart pointed out that this amount is nearly $3 million more than the total paid by California land owners and over $15 million more than by Iowa farm owners.

From 1940 to 1956, Illinois farm real estate taxes jumped by 220 percent. All other states also showed increases, but not this much, the land economist pointed out. For all 48 states, the average rise for the 16-year period was 133 percent.

Rates Are Higher
While Illinois owners hold 7.1 percent of the nation's total farm real estate value, they are assessed for 9.8 percent of the farm real taxes.

Expressed in terms of value, Stewart estimates that Illinois taxes will be more than $1.25 per acre.

DHIA PRODUCTION HIGHEST ON RECORD

URBANA—Illinois dairy herds enrolled in Dairy Herd Improvement record-keeping programs during 1957 set new production records for both milk and butterfat.

G. W. Harpestad, extension dairy specialist at the University of Illinois College of Agriculture, reports that 1,640 herds completed the testing year. Average 1957 production per cow was 10,217 pounds of milk and 396 pounds of butterfat.

This was an increase of 133 pounds of milk and 7 pounds of butterfat over the previous year's record high figures, Harpestad says.

Nearly half (791) of the herds on test went over the high average of 400 pounds of butterfat. This is also an all-time high. Of this number, 82 herds averaged more than 500 pounds of butterfat.

JHS Class Of 1948 Holds Ten-Year Reunion At Moose

The Jacksonville High School Class of 1948 held its tenth anniversary reunion at the Jacksonville Moose Club on Saturday, June 28. A cocktail hour preceded the fried chicken dinner.

The invocation was repeated in unison and led by Doris Clayton Whitaker. The toastmaster, Bill Jarrett, introduced the members of the committee which had planned the reunion.

Miss Emma Mae Leonhard, class sponsor of the high school faculty, was introduced and she spoke briefly to the class.

Bill Meyer, in charge of the program, was introduced and he conducted a contest to determine who could name the largest number of the popular songs of 1948 from hearing brief recordings. Winner of that contest was Mary Lou White Reeve. Prize for traveling the farthest distance went to Lloyd Williams of Quincy, Mass.; prize for most-changed man went to Fred Self; and prize for most-changed woman went to Cleda Massey Gutmann.

Flower Of The Month —

It Explodes—Quietly

By Emma Mae Leonhard

Time Of Reds, Yellows

Here we are again in the month of July — the month of reds and yellows, the month of the noisy Fourth of July.

There was a time when there was no sleeping before and after the Fourth: before, because the children (young and old) just couldn't wait to set off those little red fire-crackers to see the red fire-crackers leap into yellow flames and to frighten anyone around with those sudden bangs. There was no sleeping afterwards because there were always some fire-crackers left over for further shooting.

Some parents "saw red" when their children tormented them with sudden fire-cracker explosions in the most unpredictable places. Some children "saw yellow" because of their fear of the little red devils. Others learned to wear the "Red Badge of Courage" by glancing in the loudest bangs and by nursing heroically scorched fingers and fire-cracker wounds.

Even now there are stolen bits of pleasure in celebrating the fourth. Fire-crackers seem to come from somewhere; red fire-crackers still explode into yellow flames. And there are many fireworks displays in legalized celebrations of the Fourth of July.

Spotted Jewelweed
How is this long introduction on fire-crackers connected with our flower of the month? First of all, in color. Our choice of the flower of the month for July is the Spotted Jewelweed, a little golden blossom that hangs like an ear-drop from its slim stem. And it is set with tiny rubies which sparkle in the morning sunshine.

Wherever there are shade and moisture in the woodlands, there you can be sure to find jungles of the red and yellow Jewelweed. Many of you have broken paths through this jungle on the way to a fishing spot. Waist-high and cool, these bushy plants abundantly display these bits of golden jewelry, very distinctive flowers indeed.

If you are alert to the wild life about you, you will see the Ruby-throated Hummingbird darting here and there through that patch of Jewelweed. It will pause to thrust its long beak into the trumpet part of each dangling flower and drink the nectar which lies there. There it will hang for a moment in mid air upon the dangling pendant of Jewelweed, matching its ruby throat with the tiny rubies on each flower.

The Jewelweed is also called Snapweed or Touch - Me - Not, somewhat suggestive of our Fourth of July fire-cracker. The seeds for each flower, like those of our well-known Snap-dragon, soon form.

When they ripen, the covering of the seed-pods split, curl, and scatter the seeds into the woods. These little explosions may not be noisy, but they are not confined to the Fourth of July. They go on most of the summer to bring us more Jewelweeds to enjoy for the many Julys which follow.

Jim's Big Surprise

By D. W. Hendrickson

Part 5: Two Boys On Their Own

Jim's cousin Ted, who doesn't swim or do hardly anything interesting, is visiting when Jim's father gets a phone call inviting him and Jim's mother to visit a business friend and his wife in Chicago.

"Clare will be delighted to come, Taylor. We'll see you at the hotel for lunch tomorrow."

Jim's mother came back into the living room looking worried. "Your father wants me to go to Chicago with him," she said.

"That's fine, Mom, and don't worry about Ted and me," said Jim.

"Yes, Aunt Clare, we'll be fine," agreed Ted.

"I don't know who I'll get to stay with you since Miss Hanskins is having that garden party."

"Oh, not a baby-sitter, Mom, please. We're not little kids," groaned Jim. Then he brightened up. "Say, though, maybe you've got something after all, Mom. Jeanie and Sue are a couple of cute baby-sitters."

"Well, Clare, I guess when they start thinking about teenage baby-sitters, they don't need any baby-sitter at all," said Mr. Kendall.

"I still think it was a good idea," grinned Jim.

When Mr. and Mrs. Kendall came after a flurry of hurried preparation, the boys went up for hamburgers. A movie and the radio programs completed the evening, and Jim even began to think that entertaining Ted wouldn't be so bad after all.

One Thing Missing
The only thing they really missed, and they wouldn't have known it was someone to tell Ted to go to bed. At last Jim hauled himself out of his Dad's easy chair, turned off the radio and stretched. "Well, guess I had better put Duke out for the night," he yawned.

"Mind if Fluff sleeps on the foot of my bed?" asked Ted. "She's used to that."

"Sure, that's O.K.," said Jim. He was too sleepy to care about anything, but he did think that Fluff was a spoiled pup.

Strange Noise
The boys were in adjoining twin beds and sound asleep in record time. Jim couldn't guess how long they had been asleep when he awakened with a start at the sound of soft but unmistakable footsteps in the dining room. He heard a drawer opened softly, and he tried to pull himself awake. A moment later he had no trouble getting wide awake, for Duke was barking furiously at the back door, and Fluff was yapping from the dining room. Ted was awake, too, and the boys heard swearing, scuffling, and shrill yips mixed with Duke's deep-voiced clamor.

The two raced to the dining room and flashed the light on a strange sight.

Let's Go Birding

WARBLING VIREO

By Emma Mae Leonhard

Our articles about birds during the past two years have been mainly about sparrows, warblers, woodpeckers, water birds, shore birds, and blackbirds. We have slighted the vireos, and yet we can see seven kinds of vireos during the spring, three of which are plentiful and nest here during every summer.

What are vireos? They are small olive- or gray-backed birds that we might confuse with warblers. Yet they are less active than warblers, slowly searching for insects under the leaves.

They seem to almost crawl around the twigs rather than flit about like warblers. Sometimes they are called Greenlets: the Latin word Vireo means "I am green."

The three species of vireos that commonly nest in our area are the Warbling, the Red-eyed, and Bell's. The last of May we had a call from Gilbert Stauffer, who lives on Walnut street. He wanted some help in identifying a bird that was nesting high in an Elm tree; he thought that it might be a warbler of some kind. We were glad to visit the place to help Gilbert identify the bird.

As soon as we saw the nest through our binoculars, we guessed that it belonged to a Warbling Vireo. There hung a neatly woven nest, gracefully suspended from a forked twig far out on the Elm branch.

It was so well buried in the leaves that we wondered how Gilbert had found it. He had just happened to see the bird fly into the place. When the breeze tossed the leaves around, we succeeded in catching a full view of the nest.

Soon we caught a glimpse of the gray back of a bird buried deeply in the nest. We still guessed that it was a Warbling Vireo, but we wanted to make sure. We tried our best, but in vain to disturb it enough to cause it to fly from the nest so that we might get a full view of it.

After we had almost given up seeing it and were ready to leave, the bird flew to a branch just about three feet from the nest. It was so concealed by the leaves that we had not yet really seen it.

Warbles Song
Then, with its characteristic smooth and running warble, it slipped back into the nest, and sang the same clear, pleasant, and unburied warble as it sang buried in its woven basket-nest.

We knew then that it was a Warbling Vireo. The male Warbling Vireo also sits on the eggs; and does not seem to mind this responsibility, for it warbles at it.

There is no other song just like the Warbling Vireo's song—that sweet, leisurely warble which we can hear all summer, repeated over and over all day long, no matter how hot the day. The song may be unvaried and monotonous to some listeners, but it is always sweet and pleasant, perfectly fitted to the atmosphere of the lazy days of summer.

Once you have recognized the song of the Warbling Vireo, you will never confuse it with any other bird's song; the song is unmistakable. Since the bird feeds high in the leafy crowns of trees it is hard to identify.

It is through the song that we know that the Warbling Vireo is there. The bird itself has very little to distinguish it—a gray pale bird that is whitish beneath, but it is an inseparable part of the summer and the dense leaves high in the trees. It is everywhere: in city trees, in parks, and in woods.

In our next article we shall discuss the Red-eyed Vireo.

About The Atom

By Joseph A. Smith

Part 8: Atom Smashing

Long before man learned how to obtain atomic energy by either splitting or fusing atoms certain radioactive atoms had been doing just this.

A certain amount of radioactivity is present around us at all times: in our homes, in our air, in all water, present in the ground, and in the sun's rays. In a one mile square, one foot thick area of ordinary soil one will find one gram of Radium and three tons of Uranium.

Of course some watches and clocks have hands and dials painted with minute amounts of Radium; still it is very valuable as may be seen in the fact that 23 pellets weighing 50 grams (about as much as 12 pennies) are valued over one million dollars!

The great physicist Rutherford made an important discovery in 1919 which in time led to present day atom smashers. He realized that Radium constantly breaks down into other forms; so he sought ways that man could do this.

It was in 1919, after many unsuccessful attempts, that he succeeded in bombarding a Nitrogen N-14 nucleus with an Alpha particle. Surprisingly it broke into a fast Proton and an Oxygen O-17 nucleus.

The Oxygen atom then picked up enough negatively charged electrons to form a complete Oxygen atom. Since, however, this collision happened only rarely, the scientist next sought some faster way to break down the atom.

How To Smash Atom
He learned that by bombarding the nuclei of atoms with tiny protons, neutrons, or electron particles traveling at terrific speeds he was able to smash the atoms. The atom may either absorb (fission) particles or cast off (fission) particles.

Little Bird Learns

By Raymond E. Injerd

Editor's Note: This story and the illustration was sent in by Junior page reader Raymond Eugene Injerd, age 8, of Jacksonville who will be in grade 4 this fall. Raymond encloses a letter in which he says "I read 'Miss Leonhard's Let's Go Birding' and think it is very nice so I am sending this story."

HOME-MAKING TIME

Once there were two robins who wanted some babies so they got some mud, grass and sticks and built a nest.

The mother sat down in the nest and laid one—two—three eggs. The father just sat there—just watching.

When the mother bird got up the eggs were there. She sat on them for about two weeks; then she heard and felt one crack, then another and another. She was surprised when she saw the three babies, and so was the father.

"Cheep, cheep!" said the baby robins.

"What are you going to name them?" asked the mother.

"Well, I'll name this one Feather Boy, this one Daisy Boy and this one Silver Bird," said the father.

All Alone
When the robins got big, Feather Boy and Daisy Boy died. Their father and mother died too. Silver Bird was all alone.

Even though he tried to teach himself how to fly it was so hard that he gave up and quit. An hour passed so he tried after resting. He got up and...

He did not feel himself falling. Then a bright smile came to the young bird's face. He finally was flying!

Silver Bird flew around an oak tree as his wings went flap, flap. He still had his smile.

Happy Song
Soon Silver Bird got tired of flying so he sat down in a tree for about fifteen minutes. As he sat he sang a little song.

Other birds gathered around him. When he finished he got up again and flew off. Everyone else flew away too.

The more Silver Bird flew the more the smile broadened. He was the happiest bird there.

So Silver Bird lived happily ever after even though he was alone.

I'm Lonely

By Melma Huckleby Ewert

Dear little first star
Are you lonely too?
Were I there with you
Know you what we'd do?

We'd run, like Jack and Jill
Down that big blue hill
To yonder pale white sea.

Where silently float
A waiting you and me
Sails a silver-sheened moon-boat.

Oh little star!

Can't we.

The Maltese Kitten

By Mrs. Otto Dorr

Part 1: What Is It?

Once there was a little town without a single Maltese kitten. There were spotted, striped, black and white cats, but no blue Maltese.

What was a Maltese? No child there knew but a lady was going to get one.

She had written to far off New England and an answer had come. "Yes, I shall send one by express, but first I must make a proper crate for it."

When the neat wooden slatted box was ready it had a container for food at one end and a well fastened can for water at the other. Tucked on top was a sign, "PLEASE FEED THIS KITTEN" for the journey would last at least four days. Then the last letter was mailed. "Your kitten was shipped today."

Frightening Trip
The kitten huddled in a dark corner of its crate for strangers frightened it and it did not like riding in jolting baggage cars, or sometimes waiting in depot express rooms for another train. But the trainmen faithfully shared bits from their lunch boxes and gave it water. Each day the little animal was traveling nearer to its destination.

The lady was waiting for its arrival, too. She had told two friendly neighbor boys that a Maltese was on its way and that the expressman would bring it promptly to her home. Each day the boys trotted to the depot at traintime to see what the baggage car unloaded four times a day.

Only trunks, satchels, boxes and bundled things appeared until one morning a crate was lifted into the express wagon. Far back in one corner sat a grimy, wide-eyed kitten.

"It is frightened," cautioned the driver, "but you can ride up with me and help steady the crate."

Meet This American —

Paul A. Siple

By Walter B. Hendrickson

Boy Scout in Antarctic
Dr. Paul A. Siple, biologist, explorer, and geographer, last year listed his business address as Little America, Antarctica.

Although this is not his permanent place of work, Dr. Siple has spent more time in Antarctica than any other person in the world.

Paul Siple was born in Montpelier, Ohio, in 1908, but grew up in the city of Erie, Pennsylvania. He joined the Boy Scouts, and when he was 15 years old he was an Eagle Scout and earned 60 merit badges.

When he was 19 years old, he was chosen to represent the Boy Scouts of America on Admiral Richard E. Byrd's first expedition to Antarctica.

Siple's experience in Antarctica along with all the nature-lore he had learned as a Boy Scout determined that he would major in biology at Allegheny College. After graduation he traveled in Antarctica as a member of the American group making observations for the International Geophysical Year.

In 1957, he went once again to Antarctica as a member of the American group making observations for the International Geophysical Year.

Dr. Siple's major work on this expedition was to establish a base exactly at the South Pole, where he and a few other men lived through the coldest weather on earth and gathered valuable scientific information.

After this expedition, Siple earned his Ph.D. in geography at Clark University, and then made another expedition to Antarctica.

When the Second World War came, Dr. Siple joined the Army as an expert in climatology and environmental protection. That is, he taught soldiers how to dress and live and fight in very hot and in very cold climates.

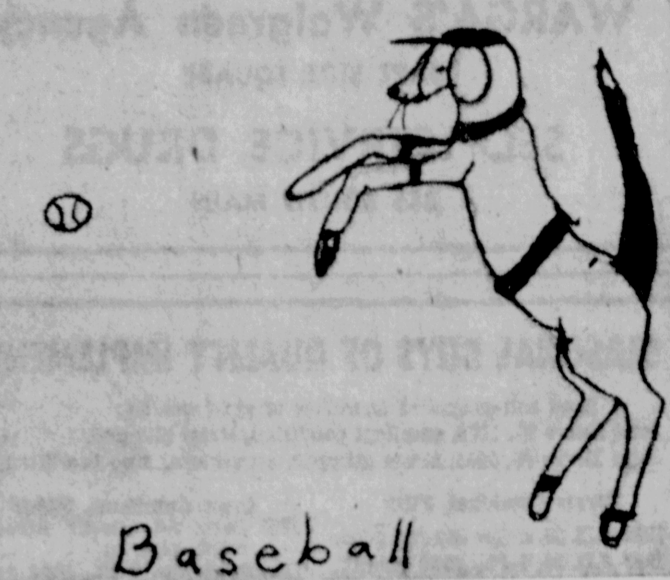

Although he resigned from the Army in 1946 as a lieutenant colonel, he has continued to advise the United States government on these matters.

In 1957, he went once again to Antarctica as a member of the American group making observations for the International Geophysical Year.

Dr. Siple's major work on this expedition was to establish a base exactly at the South Pole, where he and a few other men lived through the coldest weather on earth and gathered valuable scientific information.

Shot Heard Round the Moon

By Walter B. Hendrickson Jr.

Both the Army and the Air Force are preparing for a missile shot which will be "heard round the moon."

The part of the rocket that will actually go around the moon will resemble the satellite now circling the earth, or it might be a nose cone that is designed to return to earth.

To reach the moon the final stage of the rocket will reach a starting speed of 23,827 miles per hour. If a rocket went faster than this it might overshoot the moon, be lost in space or even drawn into the sun. If the moon messenger went slower than this it might not even reach the moon.

The moon messenger will be aimed 40 degrees ahead of the moon, so that when it reaches the orbit of the moon three days later the moon will catch it and swing it around back to earth by its gravitational power. If the moon messenger comes too close to the moon it will be drawn into a permanent orbit around the moon or might even crash on the moon's surface.

Next we'll tell you about IF I MISS.

They are not saying anything.

For this shot around the moon, the Army is planning a modification of its Jupiter, an intermediate range ballistic missile. The Air Force is working on a combination of its Thor IRBM (intermediate range ballistic missile) and the second and third stages of the Vanguard rocket.

The top right picture shows all of the guests seated at the refreshment table on the wide drive beside the Mason home where the guests enjoyed individual birthday cakes with miniature candles in the center and ice cream. Shown in this picture are Mrs. Rex Mason, Melanie Sue's paternal grandmother, who is standing at the end of the table holding the honoree's younger brother, Jeff. Seated on camera side of the table are, left to right, Michaela Magnier, Mitzie Slavens and Vicki Bates. Mrs. Donald Mason is at the end of the far side of the serving table and the children are, left to right, Susan Mussato, Katherine Sibert, Judy Marine standing back of Melanie Sue, Scott Prickett, Dana Sue Bates, Patty Williamson and Steven Marine. Vicki and Dana Sue's mother, Mrs. Donald Bates, also attended the party.

BOTTLE BABY—Lunch is being served to a chihuahua pup several days old. The pup is one of a litter of seven at the home of Leroy Wills in Baltimore, Md. The tiny chihuahua is hardly as big as one of Wills' hands.

Work on Nuclear Power For Space Vehicles—

Design of nuclear-powered rockets that could hurl multi-ton vehicles at extreme speeds into outer space with hundred-fold increase over the payloads of today's missiles is on the horizon. Research for a nuclear rocket engine is being conducted under Air Force contract by Rocketdyne, of Canoga Park, Calif., a division of North American Aviation, Inc. With their greater power, nuclear rockets might make space flight possible in single-stage rather than multi-stage vehicles. Diagram above illustrates how a nuclear rocket engine might be constructed. Sketch at right shows a nuclear-powered space vehicle in flight.

Ex-Territorial Governor Says

Alaska Statehood Shot In Arm For U.S.

By ERNEST GRUENING
Former Territorial Governor of Alaska

As TOLD TO DOUGLAS LARSEN
NEA Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — One of the major immediate results of statehood for Alaska will be an emotional and spiritual boost to all Americans plus an inevitable rekindling of the pioneer spirit in the U. S.

This has been the traditional public reaction to the opening of a new frontier with the inclusion of a new state in the Union.

If any single man is responsible for Alaska becoming the 49th state, it is Ernest Gruening, a native of New York City whose first interest outside the borders of the U. S. lay in Latin America.

Born Feb. 6, 1887, Gruening was graduated from Harvard Medical School in 1912, but gave up medicine for newspaper work in Boston, New York, and Portland, Me. At one point he edited The Nation. He also served for a time as publisher of the New York Spanish-language paper, La Prensa, and traveled extensively in South America. He was an advisor to the U. S. delegation at the 1933 Pan American Congress.

Gruening's abiding interest in Alaska began with his appointment in 1934 to a top Interior Department job by President Roosevelt. He was named Governor of the northern territory in 1939 and served until 1952. Since 1956, Gruening has been in Washington as Alaska's "phantom" Senator, promoting the statehood cause.

And at this particular grave moment in American history I believe the emotional impact of Alaska statehood will be greatly enhanced in the U. S., certainly in Alaska and around the world.

Literally, and from emotional response, a new state will be a

TOWN TAMER

By FRANK CRUBER

THE STORY: Riley Condor, a former marshal, knows he must have Rosser killed or Rosser will kill him. Condor does not know that Rosser has been hired by the railroad to tame the town of Great Plains.

XVI

AT 7:30 in the evening Riley Condor came out of his office. He looked over the room and saw Guy Tavenner preparing his fare layout.

"Tavenner!"

Tavenner looked up, frowned, then rose and came across the room. "Yes, Riley."

Condor took out his big gold watch and looked at it. "Find your friend, Tom Rosser—"

"He's no friend of mine."

"Find him, anyway. At exactly 7:45 tell him to hurry over to the livery stable and take a look at his horse."

Tavenner scowled. "You could send one of the bartenders to do that."

"I'm sending you."

It was in Guy Tavenner's mind to tell Riley Condor to do it himself, but his courage wasn't that big. He left the Pleasure Palace and clomped to the hotel. Rosser was in the lobby, reading a St. Paul newspaper. It was still early and he went to his room and waited five minutes.

Tavenner came into the lobby at 7:42 and went over to Rosser. "Better get over to the barn and look at that horse of yours," Tavenner snapped.

Rosser regarded him sharply. "Why?"

"Because I'm telling you. And now!"

Rosser got to his feet, saw Susan coming down the stairs. He hesitated, then turned and went out of the hotel.

In the falling darkness he headed for the livery stable. He approached it, his hand swinging close to the butt of his revolver. There was a light on inside the stable—a dim lantern. As he stepped into the open doorway he saw by the lantern light that a body was sprawled on the floor. The older who took care of the stable at night.

It was a trap.

ROSSER started to back away. Then a horse in a stall whickered. A hoof stamped and a man swore angrily. It was in Alexander's stall. Rosser's hand dropped to his gun.

A horse suddenly screamed—a scream of terrible anguish. It continued to scream, although it was momentarily cut off as a huge body thudded to the stable floor.

Fion came out of the stall. Rosser recognized him even in the dim light... Fion, holding a dripping knife in his hand.

"Fion!" Rosser said hoarsely. "The big gunfighter," sneered Fion, starting toward Rosser. "I just fixed your horse—hamstrung him." Deliberately, he threw away his knife. "Gonna fight me?"

For one awful moment Rosser was sick at his stomach. Then something seemed to explode within him. He was not even aware that he drew his gun, that the explosion that rocked the livery stable came from his gun.

But Fion was staggering. "You—you shot me!" he gasped. "Condor told me..." That was as much as he got out. He fell forward on his face, twitched once or twice, then lay still.

People appeared in the livery stable behind Rosser. He was not even aware of them. He walked stiffly to the stall in which Alexander lay. He saw what Fion had done to the magnificent animal and pointed his gun at the horse's head. He pulled the trigger twice, then came out of the stall.

Joe Leach grabbed his arm. "Migawd," he said. "You killed Fion!"

"He crippled Alexander," Rosser said dully.

Leach looked into the stall, turned back, shuddering. "Man'd do a thing like that!"

Johnny Honsinger came striding into the stable. His gun was in his hand. "Drop it, old man," he cried. "Drop it, or try using it!"

Rosser looked at the revolver hanging loosely in his hand. His eyes went up toward Honsinger, saw that the young gunfighter was tense, eager. He wanted to kill Rosser.

Rosser let the gun fall from his hand.

Honsinger came forward. "You gave up?" he said, disappointed. Then his eyes fell on Fion's body. "You killed him?"

"I killed him," Rosser said. "You're under arrest," cried Honsinger. "Throw up your hands."

Moody did not like what he saw in the young marshal's eyes and came toward Rosser.

"Better surrender, Tom," he said quickly. "We'll get it straightened out later."

Honsinger bared his teeth in a wicked grin. "Man gets caught murdering somebody he generally gets straightened out—at the end of a rope."

RC SER dozed fitfully through the night. He heard movement in the other room, talk now and then but no one opened the door to his cell.

Finally, after an hour or more of the sun peering into the room, the door was unlocked. Honsinger sang out, "Rise and shine, prisoner!" Then, "We're on our way to court and if things go right you'll be stretching rope before sundown."

Rosser left the marshal's office, with Honsinger following him closely. The street had only a few people on it. Rosser learned the reason as he approached the "court" building. A crowd stood outside and there were at least 50 people inside.

TOWN TAMER

THE STORY: When Tom Rosser, a former marshal, shoots the man, Fion, who has been hired by the railroad to tame the town of Great Plains, he is another of Condor's men.

XVII

AS Rosser and Honsinger approached, "Judge" Murcott stepped down from the planks before him.

"Court is now in session," he announced. "Prisoner, you're gonna give me a rough time, huh?"

"No, he ain't," Judge said. "Johnny Honsinger, 'I caught him in the act practically killing Fion and that's all there's to it.'"

"Prisoner," snapped Judge Murcott, "you heard the charge. Guilty or not guilty?"

Joe Moody pushed forward. "Wait a minute now, Rosser's going to have a fair trial."

Murcott regarded Moody with a jaundiced eye. "You may be mayor of this here town, Josh, but I'm telling you, I'm the judge."

Joe Leach and Dr. Kent stepped up beside Moody.

"Listen, Murcott," Dr. Kent said sardonically. "I don't know how you ever got elected but as long as you are judge, you're going to conduct yourself like one."

"You're in contempt of court!" howled Murcott. "You can't talk to me like that!"

"I can," said Dr. Kent firmly. "because I know you're a soue-pot and the next time you get the heebie-jeebies you can go and bag your head, instead of coming to me."

"You got no right to talk like that," whined Murcott, "not in front of people."

"Then pull yourself together," Josh Moody said, "A man's on trial for his life. I think this should be a jury trial."

Riley Condor and Ken Rud, who had edged forward, confronted the mayor. "Jury trial suits us fine," said Condor. "Who'll pick the jury?"

Judge Murcott took his cue from Condor. "I'll pick it for you."

"Never mind," said Rosser suddenly. "We'll do without the jury."

"You may be making a mistake," warned Dr. Kent. "It's six of one, half a dozen of the other," Rosser said cynically. "if Murcott picks the jury."

A well-dressed man who had been standing just inside the door now came forward. "This is a fair trial. I've never seen a more ridiculous trial in my life..."

The judge stabbed at the newcomer with the hammer. "Where you?"

"My name," the man said grimly, "is James Fenimore Fell."

JUDGE MURCOTT almost swallowed his Adam's apple.

"Up—uh—Mr. Fell. It's a pleasure to meet you."

"I'm sorry I can't say the same about you," snapped Fell.

The judge turned red, but the youthful marshal stepped into the breach. "Mr. Fell, you may be a big noise everywhere else, but right here you're just a man putting into something that ain't none of your business. You'll keep your mouth shut like every body else or so help me, I'll throw you out of this courtroom."

Jim Fell flinched almost as if he had been struck with a fist. Without another word, or even a glance at Tom Rosser, he turned and walked out of the room. A rumble went up in the crowd, which was silenced by Johnny Honsinger.

"Shut up, everybody. We got a man here to hang. Let's get down here to business!"

Dr. Kent turned and faced the courtroom. "I'm getting sick and tired of a kill-crazy gunfighter pushing people around. If you people intend to stand for it—I don't!"

"Easy, Doc," Riley Condor said suddenly. "We don't want more trouble than we already got."

"Christopher," Joe Leach said, "step up!"

The night hostler of the livery stable shuffled forward. "Chris," Leach continued, "you were on the job last night. Tell the court what happened."

"All I know," said the hostler, "I was sittin' in the stable when the big fellow—"

"What big fellow?"

"Fion. Like I said he came in and asked me what stall Alexander was in and when I told him he hit me one and I went out like a lantern. Next thing I knew there was a million people in the barn and somebody said Condor's name."

"Objection!" howled Riley Condor. "I had nothing to do with Fion."

DR. KENT turned back to the hostler.

"All right, that'll be all, Rosser. I'd like to ask you a few questions."

"Go ahead."

"Why did you go to the livery stable last night?"

"Because a man came to the hotel and said I should go and take a look at my horse. The way he said it caused me to believe—"

"Never mind the way he said it. Who was the man?"

Rosser drew a deep breath, sent one covert glance at the fast-faced Susan Tavenner and shook his head.

"I don't know..."

"I know!" rang out the voice of Susan Tavenner.

Guy Tavenner gasped. "Susan!" He reached savagely for her arm, but she eluded his grasp and started forward.

"It was my husband," she said firmly.
